Aim

To bring widespread use of cryptocurrencies by encouraging industries to accept gratuity in form of Gratuity.

Problem A

With the increasing convenience of electronic payments, people are carrying less physical money than they used to.

Problem B

In the hospitality industry, hotel staff may no longer receive extra gratuity for their hard work as many customers are only carrying their debit and credit cards.

There are several industries in which gratuity may not be received where deserved. For example, a cleaner of a public bathroom may not receive many tips. Similarly, a bus driver providing excellent service may find themselves in a similar situation.

The Solution

Gratuity would allow businesses to accept cryptocurrency as a form of tipping. This would be as simple as scanning a QR code representing a Gratuity address and the amount (TIP) to be sent.

A few examples of where QR codes could be placed are:

- Public bathrooms
- Bus seats
- Restaurant receipts
- Hotel rooms

QR codes representing a Gratuity address could be placed anywhere that a service is being provided encouraging the public to tip to those who may not receive extra for the explementary service they provide.

Industries such as restaurants would not lose out due to customers not carrying physical money as they now be able to tip using Gratuity.

Roadmap

2017

The planning and development of Gratuity will take place in preparation for the token sale in December 2017.

2018

Following the end of 2018, Gratuity will apply for several exchanges. The target is to be listed on as many of the most commonly used exchanges as possible.
